Bimstec telemedicine network launched

It is expected to improve patient care services in a big way

S. SENTHALIR
PUDUCHERRY

In an effort to provide better access to health care facilities in the developing nations, especially in the Bay of Bengal Initiative for Multi-Sectoral Technical and Economic Cooperation (Bimstec) region, Faggan Singh Kulaste, Minister of State, Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, on Thursday inaugurated the Jipmer-Bimstec Telemedicine Network on Thursday.

"The aim of Jipmer-Bimstec Telemedicine Network is to improve regional cooperation in the field of health care by strengthening telemedicine-based patient care services and share medical knowledge among Bimstec countries," he said, on the occasion of Jipmer Foundation Day celebration.

Mr. Kulaste said he was quite optimistic that with the establishment of this network, the health professionals from the member countries would be able to interact regularly with each other. "This will improve their knowledge which will ultimately translate into improved access to health care, especially to those residing in remote areas or the areas where there is shortage of trained manpower," he said.

Areas of cooperation

Explaining the Jipmer-Bimstec Telemedicine Network (JBTN), Jipmer Director S.C. Parija said that Bimstec is an international organisation involving a group of countries in South Asia and South East Asian countries, including Bangladesh, India, Myanmar, Sri Lanka, Thailand, Bhutan and Nepal. Among the 14 areas of cooperation among Bimstec countries public health, communication and technology were included.

"There is a great deal of disparity in quality and access to healthcare between urban and rural areas in these countries and member countries of Bimstec face acute shortage of trained specialists in the district and peripheral health facilities. Telemedicine and telehealth have immense potential to bridge the gap in healthcare delivery especially in landlocked countries and small island states where access to quality healthcare is a major hurdle," he said.

Sharing knowledge

Dr. Parija added that the aim of Jipmer-Bimstec Telemedicine Network (JBTN) is to share knowledge among member countries, promote standardisation, and quality control in surgery by sharing operative videos, initiate evidence-based guidelines for common disease conditions in the Bimstec region, use telecommunication to assist medical treatment in landlocked countries and small island States, preserve traditional medicine knowledge and promote mobile health programme.

"To begin with, JBTN has linked nine institutions in seven countries," he said.

Praising Jipmer as an institute imparting education covering a wide area in medical education and health care, Mr. Kulaste said: "We must introduce new courses to keep pace with the rapidly changing fields of medicine to meet the new challenges of health care and medical education."

He said the government had granted permission to the hospital to start liver transplant. "Soon, the institute would establish a centre for multi-organ transplantation in Jipmer. Besides this, the institute will establish a first-of-its-kind centre for multi-organ transplantation. The centre will have state-of-the-art facilities for multi-organ transplantation, transplant medicine and post-transplant care of patients," he said.

High Commissioner of Bangladesh to India Syed Muazzem Ali, Deputy High Commissioner of Sri Lanka Yadvivel Krishnamoorthy, Medical Superintendent, Jipmer, J. Balachander and Nodal officer Telemedicine and Registrar (Academic) D. Ravi Kumar Chittofia, MPs, and representatives from Bimstec countries were present.

'Network will improve regional cooperation'

Kulaste said, "The objective of Jipmer-Bimstec telemedicine network is to improve regional cooperation in the field of health care by strengthening telemedicine-based patient care services and share medical knowledge among Bimstec countries."

He expressed optimism that the network will enable healthcare professionals from the member countries to interact regularly with each other and improve their knowledge. This will ultimately translate into improved access to healthcare especially to those residing in remote areas or the areas where there is shortage of trained manpower. He congratulated the Jipmer team for establishing the network for the benefit of the poor population of the Bimstec region.

"This will be an important step towards fulfilling the dream of Prime Minister of developing sustainable regional international cooperation with East Asia and will help to further strengthen the bonds of friendship," he said.

Jipmer to bridge gap in healthcare access with South Asian partners

Times News Network

Puducherry: Union minister of state health and family welfare Pappu Singh Khatone will inaugurate a telemedicine network at Jawaharlal Institute of Postgraduate Medical Education and Research (Jipmer) in Puducherry linking hospitals and healthcare institutions in South Asia and South East Asian countries during the foundation day celebrations of Jipmer on Thursday in the institute.

Jipmer and the Bay of Bengal Initiative for Multi-Sectoral Technical and Economic Cooperation (Bimstec), an international organisation comprising South Asia and South East Asian countries, established the telemedicine facility to bridge the gap in healthcare services among member countries which include Bangladesh, India, Myanmar, Sri Lanka, Thailand, Bhutan and Nepal.

The network assumed significance as some healthcare issues are specific to Bimstec countries with 1.5 billion population constituting roughly 22% of the global population. Disparities exist when it comes to access and quality of healthcare facilities between the urban and rural regions in these countries. Moreover, member countries face an acute shortage of trained specialists in peripheral regions.

Hence, Jipmer launched the initiative to utilise telemedicine services and bridge the gap in healthcare access between urban and rural regions in these countries, said Jipmer director S C Parija. The Union external affairs ministry approved the concept under the telemedicine network, named the Jipmer Bimstec telemedicine network (JITMN), prepared by Parija and his colleagues. The Union health and family welfare ministry also approved the network, which is supported by the National Knowledge Network.

Bimstec is an important aspect of the Union government's 'Act East' policy envisioned by prime minister Narendra Modi.

High commissioners of Bangladesh in India, Sri Lanka, Myanmar, Thailand, Deputy high commissioners of Sri Lanka in Southern India, Vietnam, Cambodia, the representatives from Bimstec countries, Jipmer president M K Shan and medical superintendents J Balachandran will participate in function.

Public health spending to go up from 1.9% to 2.5% of GDP

Deena Dandekar @timesgroup.com

Puducherry: The Union government proposes to increase spending on the public health sector from the present 1.9% of the gross domestic product (GDP) to 2.5% of the GDP, said Union minister of state health and family welfare Pappu Singh Khatone.

Khatone was in Puducherry on Thursday to launch a telemedicine network established by Jawaharlal Institute of Postgraduate Medical Education and Research (Jipmer) in association with the Bay of Bengal Initiative for Multi-Sectoral Technical and Economic Cooperation (Bimstec) during the foundation day celebrations of the institute. Bimstec is an international collaboration effort involving the countries of Bangladesh, India, Myanmar, Sri Lanka, Thailand, Bhutan and Nepal.

Union minister of state Pappu Singh Khatone presents award to inaugurate the network.

Addressing the gathering Khatone said the Union government has taken all necessary measures to improve the health services throughout the country by increasing medical and paramedical staff members in all the hospitals and healthcare institutions. He pointed out that the Union government has increased the number of undergraduate and postgraduate seats to 30,000 in the country to end the introduction of National Eligibility cum Entrance tests (NEET) for students joining medical courses.

Appreciating Jipmer for launching efforts to upgrade and create its undergraduate and postgraduate seats through its medical and health care centres to keep pace with the rapidly changing fields of health care in order to meet the new challenges of healthcare and medical education.

He said the Union government has awarded approval to Jipmer to commence three more phases. The established three are in telemedicine, research and capacity building. He said Bimstec is an important aspect of the 'Act East' policy of the Union government and stated in PM Narendra Modi.
